

City Employees Seeking New Salary Hikes

Firemen, Police Lead Way Asking Council For Immediate Increase

Another round of pay hikes faced city council Tuesday night during its first session of the new year.

Members of fire and police departments requested salary increases for the seven men in each department to help fight high living costs.

The ten employees of the water and sewer department have forwarded to the board of public utilities a demand for pay hikes, it also was revealed. So far the street departments have made no similar request.

Although no definite amount of increase was included in either the fire or police department requests a spokesman for firemen indicated they hoped for at least a four percent increase which would compensate for payments into the firemen's pension fund. This would amount to about $7 monthly.

SHOULD ALL municipal departments make similar demands on council, a minimum of $3,000 for salary increases would be needed. There are about 35 city employees.

Council failed to take action of the departmental petitions and moved to refer the matter to its finance committee.

Firemen and policemen are now earning $170 per month which includes a "cost of living bonus", the fire department spokesman revealed. Fire and police departments were authorized $10 salary hikes last year.

Heading the list of the seven firemen petitioning for increases was Fire Chief Talmer Wise. Police Chief William F. McCrady signed his name to the policemen's petition.

Fred Nicholas was renamed city clerk for the ensuing year. Nicholas has completed 43 and one-half years as clerk of city council and thus remains dean of council chambers for the new term.

Councilman Ray Cook, second ward, was named president pro tem for the 1948 session. Also receiving appointments were Councilman Boyd Horn, fourth ward, and Ralph Wallace, councilman-at-large, to serve on the firemen's pension board.

COUNCIL President Luther Bower announced his appointments by naming members of the new council to seven existing committees. They are:

Finance committee, Robert Adkins, chairman, John W. Eshelman and Ray Cook; Laws and Claims committee, Boyd Horn, chairman, Ray Anderson and Ralph Wallace; Service committee, Cook, chairman, Wallace and Eshelman.

Ordinance committee, Anderson, chairman, Horn and Fred Brown; Safety committee, Wallace, chairman, Adkins and Anderson; Health committee, Brown, chairman, Horn and Cook; and Hospital committee, Eshelman, chairman, Brown and Adkins.

The December financial statement showing receipts and expenditures revealed all city funds showed a substantial balance for the new year.

Circleville general fund ended 1947 with $26,553.91 as its balance, sewage disposal fund—$1,394.36, auto street repair fund—$659.81, gasoline tax fund—$3,659.43, hospital fund—$3,414.90, water works operating fund—$5,405.73, water works improvement extension fund—$19,731.30. ### Parking Meters Really Enforced

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 7.—The police were not impressed with the sign placed in the automobile window of a newly-elected state senator, Sylvester J. Wagner of Covington.

The car was parked today in front of a Main street parking meter—which showed "violation"—and the hand-lettered sign read:

"State Senator Sylvester J. Wagner—Official."

Attached to the car also were two police tickets for parking violations. One was dated Jan. 5, and the other, Jan. 7.

Russian Vessel Sends Out SOS

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 7.—A DC-3 Coastal Airways plane, carrying 25 passengers and two crew members, crashed near Whitmarsh Island shortly after 8 a. m. today.

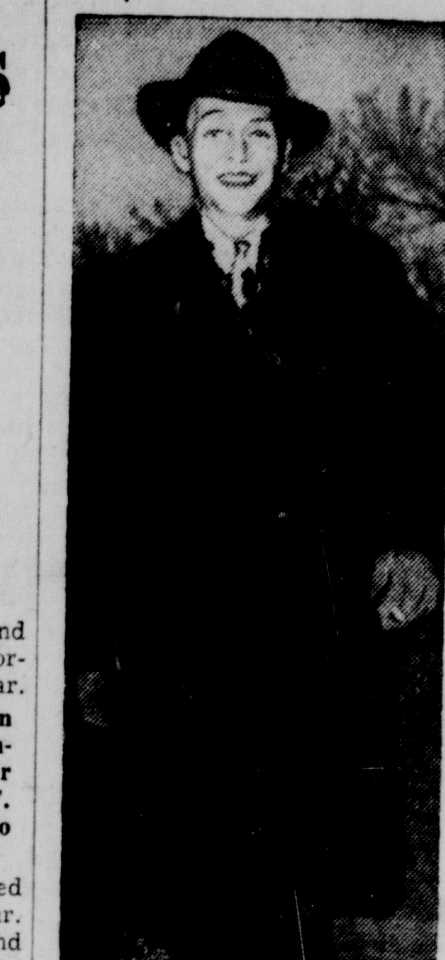

The 25 passengers aboard the plane were said to be Puerto Rico nationals. Fragmentary reports reaching the mainland said that there may have been some survivors.

Michael's Plan To Wed Princess Reported Snagged By Red Moves

LAUSANNE, Jan. 7.—The royal romance of ex-King Michael and Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma ran aground temporarily today on the red rock of Russian-sponsored political intrigue in Romania.

According to sources close to Michael, he decided to postpone, for the time being, his marriage to the pretty princess.

He has made this difficult decision not because his love for the bright eyed beauty of Copenhagen has cooled but because of what members of his entourage described as his sense of responsibility to the

S. district court in Washington to charges that he lied to congress about Meyers' war-time deals. Lamarre faces a maximum prison term of 30 years.

Gen. Meyers Proclaims Innocence

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Maj. Gen. Bennett Meyers pleaded innocent today to charges that he lied to congress about his connections with an Ohio war plant and that he induced his former friend and associate, Bleriot Lamarre, to also lie.

U. S. District Judge David A. Pine ordered Meyers to stand trial Feb. 16 on the six counts of perjury and subornation of perjury under which he was indicted.

He faces a possible maximum sentence of 60 years.

Meyers said "not guilty" in a loud, assured voice when confronted with the indictments.

He was specifically charged with concealing from senate war investigators his connections with Aviation Electric Corp., the Dayton firm which he set up.

HE ALSO was charged with falsely testifying that a $3,000 Cadillac purchased by the company was not actually bought for him, and that a $10,000 decorating job on his Washington apartment was a "gift."

Lamarre, once "dummy" president of Aviation Electric and now a gasoline station attendant, pleaded guilty yesterday to charges that he also lied on the same points in his initial (Continued on Page Two)

Government Set For Bizonia

FRANKFORT, Jan. 7.—United States and British military authorities proposed today establishment of a virtual Western German government to function under joint Anglo-American supervision.

While lacking "political teeth," the regime nevertheless would be a German affair. The proposals embraced:

1.—Election of a German upper house to legislate for what is known as Bizonia.

2.—Appointment of a cabinet.

3.—Establishment of a central bank for the two zones with powers to issue new currency under military government orders.

Congress Given 10-Year Program By President

Aid Program To Require Sacrifices

Solons Get Huge Batch Of Data

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The administration laid the foundation for the Marshall European Recovery Plan campaign before congress today with the frank warning that the program will call for sacrifices from the American people.

Fifteen documents totalling 850 pages and weighing five pounds were given each member of the senate foreign relations committee and the house foreign affairs committee.

Mostly consisting of statistics, they will form the background for the arguments in support of the plan by Secretary of State George C. Marshall, Undersecretary Robert A. Lovett and other officials.

At the same time, Sen. Russell (D) Ga., a member of the foreign relations group, declared that the six billion 800 million dollars asked for the first 15 months of the program should be cut to four billion dollars. Russell also urged creation of an outside advisory group of businessmen.

RUSSELL said, however, that Marshall should have final say on all matters affecting foreign policy.

Sen. Hatch (D) N. M., another committee member, praised the decision to eliminate the $17 billion estimate from the bill but urged congressional approval of the four-year period.

The program, as detailed in the documents, scaled the requirements set forth by the 16- (Continued on Page Two)

'Don Ameche' Is Listed As Grain Trader

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Secretary of Agriculture Anderson made public today his sixth list of grain speculators and "hedgers" which includes the name of "Don Ameche, California."

The list merely showed names without identification and did not indicate whether the trader was the movie actor.

The latest market roll call carried the names of 4,842 speculators and 515 hedgers who were in the Chicago wheat futures market between Sept. 17 and 20.

Ameche was shown to have been "long" 90,000 bushels Sept. 17; to have bought 25,000 and sold 25,000 Sept. 18 and to have sold 35,000 on Sept. 19 and the same amount on Sept. 20.

Meanwhile, the Ferguson senate subcommittee on food speculation pushed its inquiry behind closed doors and prepared for a full dress hearing Friday on the market dealings of Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, White House physician.

CHAIRMAN Ferguson (R) Mich., said the subcommittee expects "an important witness" to appear in a secret session today as the group presses its study of the accounts of Graham and of Edwin W. Pauley, special assistant to Army Secretary Royall.

Harold Stassen, candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, also is to appear Friday to tell the senate group what he knows about speculation by government "insiders."

Airliner Falls With 25 Aboard

HONOLULU, Jan. 7.—The Russian Ship Divina, with 800 passengers aboard, radioed today that she was in distress 150 miles off the coast of Honshu island, Japan.

A report picked up by the naval radio station at Guam said the ship was listing 40 degrees and taking water in its engine rooms.

THIS GENERAL VIEW was taken in the house as the Republican 80th congress convened for the regular 1948 session. It was before this group that President Truman appeared today asking for help in enacting a 10-year program for improving human welfare at home and abroad.

Nation's Ills Blamed On Lack Of Education

COLUMBUS, Jan. 7.—If soap operas beset you, if movie villains plague you; if you're worried about the Russians or racial intolerance, at least part of your problems can be traced to—of all things—the boy next door who didn't graduate from high school.

So says Ohio's education director, Clyde Hissong, who believes that many of the nation's ills can be traced to a problem that has been given very little attention—the 40 percent of the students who enter but never graduate from high school.

Hissong has a chart showing that progression through all four high school grades is far from a normal thing. In fact, Hissong claims, "instead of being normal as is commonly supposed, graduation for the boy or girl who enters high school is barely average."

He points out that 20 percent of the students who do graduate go on to college. Another 20 percent enter trade schools. That leaves 60 percent who just drift into a job.

"Educators," Hissong says, "have given much consideration to the problem of this floating 60 percent, but I'd like to raise the problem of the boy or girl who never makes graduation day."

Ohio's head educational administrator believes the student who drops out of school does not get the proper background in such studies as American history, English literature, civics and the rest of the social studies to appreciate truly the culture in which he lives.

This, Hissong says, is one of the causes of racial and religious intolerance, bad government and even wars.

Moreover, he believes, "the non-high school graduate probably feels inferior. I know I would. In an age when the high school diploma is the minimum educational requirement, they are blocked from getting even very ordinary positions."

"These people," Hissong continues, "can't even go to the parties and dances of their one-time friends. They feel out of their own social group."

"And when that happens—when they feel inferior—the first reaction is to knife someone in the back. Perhaps not intention- (Continued on Page Two)

Wild Gun Fight Follows Bomb Blasts In Zion

JERUSALEM, Jan. 7.—At least 10 persons were reported killed and "scores" injured today when two violent explosions rocked Jerusalem.

The blasts touched off furious running gun battles which raged through the city's streets and inside a Moslem cemetery.

The first blast occurred at the ancient Jaffa gate at Jerusalem, and was followed a few minutes later by a second explosion near British security headquarters north of the old city.

Believed set by members of the Jewish Irgun Zvai Leumi, the Jaffa gate bombing was staged under protective cover from riflemen and machinegunners. Police returned the fire.

At least one British policeman and an Arab constable were reported shot in the engagement, along with one of the raiders.

POLICE and troops—under orders to shoot on the spot anyone found carrying arms—stalked gunmen who fired from behind tombstones in the cemetery. Two men were reported shot in this fight.

Troops on guard duty around security zones crouched behind sandbag barricades while armored cars, following radio directions, sped through the streets, hunting down gun-toting terrorists.

Mercury Rise Is Predicted

It was moderately cold over Ohio today, but the weatherman promised a rise in the mercury and a light snowfall over most of the state by tomorrow.

Temperatures this morning dropped to as low as eight degrees at Dayton and in the teens at most places for the coldest morning in quite a number of days. Snow flurries were reported in Northern Ohio.

Weather bureau forecasters said that the mercury probably would go no lower than in the 20s tonight.

The state department of highways reported roads slippery in spots in the northeast and west central portions of Ohio, with highways generally normal in the balance of the state.

Snow depths ranged from an inch at Cleveland, Columbus, Mansfield and Youngstown, to two inches at East Liverpool, Perry and Zanesville, three at Dayton and Wilmington and four inches at Toledo.

November Price Of Ohio Milk Said Second Highest On Record

COLUMBUS, Jan. 7.—The price paid Ohio farmers for milk sold wholesale continued to advance during last November, the average price of $5.15 per hundred pounds being the second highest of any month on record.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture Bureau of Agricultural Economics pointed out today that the November price was exceeded only by the $5.56 average paid in November of 1946.

Quantities delivered to both the principal Ohio fluid markets and milk manufacturing plants, however, showed sharp decrease from the October level.

The 21 fluid markets received an estimated 128 million pounds of milk during November, a decrease of 22 million from the previous month.

MANUFACTURING plant receipts were down 31 million pounds.

Although the decreased production is seasonal, the department pointed out the drop this year was from two to three times the decreases in the same months of 1946.

Income Tax Cut Asked By Truman

Inflation Rated Top Priority

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—President Truman startled the Republican congress today by urging a three billion 200 million dollar tax slash for low income groups, offset by increased levies on rich corporations.

The chief executive, appearing in person before a joint session of congress, offered his tax adjustment plea as part of a 10-year program for improving human welfare in the United States and the maintenance of world peace.

Mr. Truman gave top priority in his State of the Union message to the "major problem" of inflation, which he said "affects all our goals."

The President called for creation of a new cabinet post. He asked establishment of a federal department of health, education and security, headed by a cabinet member.

The President emphasized the necessity for strong American armed forces, early enactment of the Universal Military Training Act, and swift congressional approval of the Marshall Plan for European recovery.

His message demanded a rigid rent control system and intensified efforts to solve the housing crisis, defense of natural resources against "those who would misuse it for selfish gain," and vast flood control and hydro-electric projects.

Mr. Truman called forcefully for a higher standard of living for all Americans, with wages geared to sound prices and "restraint and wisdom" in labor-management relations. He asked that the minimum wage rate be raised from 40 cents to 75 cents per hour.

He specifically asked congress to grant a "cost of living credit" of $40 to each citizen. This would flash the income tax of a married couple with two children by $160.

Mr. Truman asked congress to help him achieve six major goals. He made 26 specific recommendations for legislation to carry out his 10-year program for domestic prosperity and world peace.

THE PRESIDENT asked congress to join him in lifting America's standard of living, to give decent housing to every family, to stamp out poverty, to put 50 billion new dollars into industry, to eliminate monopoly and to smash inflation by slashing the cost of living.

He insisted government expenditures would be cut to the bone and declared federal revenues must be kept at their present high level to defeat inflation.

Mr. Truman dedicated his historic speech to the "dignity of man created in the image of the Father of us all." This was an indirect blast at Russia, the "Godless state."

Without mentioning Russia by name, Mr. Truman declared that "unfortunately, not all governments share the hope" of America that the world can recover economically "by cooperative effort among nations."

Twice, Mr. Truman seemed to be answering his major critic—Henry Agard Wallace. Once was when he declared forcefully for the preservation of the "human rights of all our citizens." The second time came when he pledged his administration to world peace.

WALLACE has been charging the President with abandoning human rights and leading the nation to war.

The six goals which the President asked congress to help his administration achieve were:

1. "To secure fully the essential human rights of our citizens."
2. "To protect and develop our human resources."
3. "To conserve and use our national resources so that they (Continued on Page Three)

ONE MAN'S OPINION

New York Democrats charge Gov. Dewey with having a $700,000,000 surplus. This is a serious charge and should eliminate him from White House consideration.

In these days, any man who can't get rid of $700,000,000 just ain't tryin'.

You can't blame a man for running for the White House...or any other house that might be vacant.

There's an Irish family here with 11 children trying to find a home. We should know now whether there is anything to the "luck of the Irish."

But the report is that more houses will be built in '48 than were in '47. Many of those built in '47 are still standing.

10-Inch Dagger May Aid Police Tracing Slayer

CLEVELAND, Jan. 7.—The search for the killer of Sheila Ann Tuley, 8, centered today on a house within a block of her East Side Cleveland home where detectives found a 10-inch German dagger that might have been used to stab the child.

Two occupants of the house were investigated in the New Year's night slaying. One, a 23-year-old man described by police as "mentally retarded," was held in Central police station, while the other, a 17-year-old boy described as having the mentality of a four-year-old, was too ill to be taken into custody.

He insisted government expenditures would be cut to the bone and declared federal revenues must be kept at their present high level to defeat inflation.

Mr. Truman dedicated his historic speech to the "dignity of man created in the image of the Father of us all." This was an indirect blast at Russia, the "Godless state."

Without mentioning Russia by name, Mr. Truman declared that "unfortunately, not all governments share the hope" of America that the world can recover economically "by cooperative effort among nations."

Twice, Mr. Truman seemed to be answering his major critic—Henry Agard Wallace. Once was when he declared forcefully for the preservation of the "human rights of all our citizens." The second time came when he pledged his administration to world peace.

WALLACE has been charging the President with abandoning human rights and leading the nation to war.

The six goals which the President asked congress to help his administration achieve were:

1. "To secure fully the essential human rights of our citizens."

2. "To protect and develop our human resources."

3. "To conserve and use our national resources so that they

Councilman Horn Retains Title Of Great Dissenter

Councilman Boyd Horn started out the 1948 term Tuesday night retaining his title of "the great dissenter," by throwing a monkey wrench into a move by Circleville city council to place control of parking meters in the hands of the city service director.

The emergency ordinance was defeated by Horn's lone dissenting vote and by the lack of a sixth vote. Councilman Ray Cook was absent from the meeting.

Horn's dissent came when council attempted to vote to suspend rules, thus enabling the body to pass the measure immediately. Under rules, an ordinance must be read at three different meetings. Suspension of rules requires approval of six of the seven city fathers. With Cook absent, Horn's negative sixth vote balked council's move.

Observers said, however, that council probably would clear the measure at its next meeting, provided all councilmen, including Cook, are present.

HORN'S DISSENT was based on the argument that parking meters drive away trade.

Councilmen favoring the transfer of parking meter collection and control argued that law enforcement has been lax, revenue far below possibilities.

If the meters were in the safety department, they declared, then the police department, including Cook, are present.

Kiernan's ONE MAN'S OPINION

New York Democrats charge Gov. Dewey with having a $700,000,000 surplus. This is a serious charge and should eliminate him from White House consideration.

In these days, any man who can't get rid of $700,000,000 just ain't tryin'.

You can't blame a man for running for the White House....or any other house that might be vacant.

There's an Irish family here with 11 children trying to find a home. We should know now whether there is anything to the "luck of the Irish."

But the report is that more houses will be built in '48 than were in '47. Many of those built in '47 are still standing.

power committee of European economic cooperation meeting in Paris last Summer. Moreover, it avoided reference in terms of dollars, in line with the decision to abandon the $17 billion figure.

However, in what it called a program of "realism," the administration made clear it is holding out for a four-year period. The report said:

"To ensure success the main outlines of a far reaching program of action designed to reactivate the European economy must span the entire period of the recovery process."

Even so, the report said, Europeans will be eating less at the end of the program in mid-1952 than they did before the war. Calling attention to the conclusion reached by earlier studies of America's economic potential, it argued that "a small fraction of the strength of American economy, properly applied, could furnish the impetus required to move the European economy upward off dead-center."

Lamb To Attend Judges' Parley

Sterling Lamb, judge of Pickaway County probate court, will attend a meeting Thursday of Ohio's probate and juvenile judges being held this week in Columbus.

The sessions will deal principally with the problems of juvenile judges.

In an address Tuesday, State Grange Master Joseph Fichter said six percent, or more than eight million, of the U. S. population are mental patients taking up one-half of the hospital beds. These patients cost themselves and their families more than one billion dollars a year, Fichter claimed.

It was pointed out that nervous and mental disorders caused more casualties per year than cancer, infantile paralysis and tuberculosis combined.

Anderson, who voiced opposition to any consideration of an income tax such as is being debated in Columbus, said the addition meters would provide needed income for the city.

Anderson objected and stated that if such a committee is to become a part of council, it should be the same as all other panels—have three - member status.

Postoffice Sets Receipt Record

A new record was set at the Circleville postoffice during December, according to a report by Postmaster Hulse A. Hays.

"The month of December, 1947, was the largest December in the history of our postoffice," Hays said, "with receipts totaling $7,799.87. Next highest December fell in 1946, when sales totaled $7,555.72."

Sales for the year totaled $53,164.23, an increase of more than $3,000 over 1946. Highest year recorded was in 1945, when sales reached the $58,000 mark. Hays said 21,000 five-cent airmail stamps had been sold during 1947.

A report on the first six days of January so far indicates that 1948 may be a busy year for postoffice employees, with sales totaling $1,386.48 as compared to $639.22 sold in a similar period last year.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—An attractive brunet bandit staged daring holdups in two Times Square area hotels early today, threatened to kill one victim, and was captured two hours later while she calmly ate breakfast. appearance before the senate committee.

Lamarre later told the committee that Meyers realized $150,000 in kickbacks from the company.

Practically all of the firm's one and one-half million dollars worth of wartime business was in the form of subcontracts for the Air Forces.

The second indictment against Meyers charged that he induced Lamarre to lie about his connection with the firm, the Cadillac and the decorating job.

Meyers was given 10 days to enter motions to set aside the indictment.

Postoffice Sets Receipt Record

A new record was set at the Circleville postoffice during December, according to a report by Postmaster Hulse A. Hays.

"The month of December, 1947, was the largest December in the history of our postoffice," Hays said, "with receipts totaling $7,799.87. Next highest December fell in 1946, when sales totaled $7,555.72."

Sales for the year totaled $53,164.23, an increase of more than $3,000 over 1946. Highest year recorded was in 1945, when sales reached the $58,000 mark. Hays said 21,000 five-cent airmail stamps had been sold during 1947.

A report on the first six days of January so far indicates that 1948 may be a busy year for postoffice employees, with sales totaling $1,386.48 as compared to $639.22 sold in a similar period last year.

Man Convinced English Honest

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Max Schulher is convinced the English are honest people.

The New York delicatessen man lost his wrist watch some weeks ago about the time he was making up some Christmas food parcels for customers who planned to send them to England.

Schulher got in touch with the customers, one of whom reported yesterday the watch had been found in a package sent to London and was being returned.

Building Burns

At the Harrison township board of education meeting, James Kuhlwein and Roy Krieger were elected as president and vice-president, respectively. Other members of the board are Rinehart, Frank Baum and Don Hatfield. John Dowler is clerk.

Health Panel Lacks Quorum

Lack of a quorum Tuesday stymied any official action by the Circleville board of health at its first meeting of the new year.

Mayor Thurman I. Miller, board president ex officio, called the meeting at the Health cottage on West Franklin street, to outline goals for the current year.

Other members of the board are John W. Bolender, health commissioner, Dr. H. D. Jackson, Dr. Ned Griner, Emmitt L. Crist, Eli Roper and George Himrod.

Ohio Brunet Held For Gun Play In Gotham

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—An attractive brunet bandit staged daring holdups in two Times Square area hotels early today, threatened to kill one victim, and was captured two hours later while she calmly ate breakfast.

A cab driver's tip led to the girl's arrest at 7 a. m. in a Brooklyn lunch car near the Manhattan bridge. Police, who said that she admitted the stick-ups, identified her as Madeline Ruth Evans, 29, of Youngstown, O.

"I deserve all the law can give me," she was quoted on being picked up at the diner. "No, I don't know why I did it. And I have no gun."

The robberies netted her less than $50.

Mother Of 6 Asks Divorce

Six Groveport, Route 1, children faced legal separation of their parents Tuesday when Ruth E. McRoberts filed suit in Pickaway County common pleas court for dissolution of her marriage.

In the petition for divorce, Mrs. McRoberts claims her husband, John E. McRoberts, is guilty of gross neglect of duty. On several occasions, she states, McRoberts has deserted her and the children and has left no funds for their care.

The children, ages 6 to 20, were born of the McRoberts' marriage Dec. 30, 1926, in Chillicothe.

can contribute most effectively to the welfare of our people."

4. "To lift the standard of living for all our people by strengthening our economic system and sharing more broadly among our people the goods we produce."

5. "To achieve world peace based on principles of freedom and justice and the equality of all nations."

6. "Deal effectively and at once with the high cost of living" and "stop the spiral of inflation."

The President said that the sixth goal—to deal effectively with the high cost of living and inflation—is a "major problem which affects all our goals."

The President said all citizens, regardless of race, creed or color, must be given equal opportunity for education, jobs, at the polls and in the courts of the land.

He SAID he will send a special message to congress asking "effective" legislation to guarantee these civil rights to all.

Mr. Truman recommended under the second goal:

A. Extension of unemployment compensation, old age benefits and survivors' benefits, with a raising of the level of benefits, and a national health insurance program to protect all against insecurity and ill-health.

B. Equal educational opportunities for all children with more schools and higher pay for teachers, aided by federal financing. He said a new federal department of health, education and security, with a cabinet member at its head, should be created.

C. Extension and strengthening of rent control until a long-range housing program, which he recommended, can assure "that every American family has a decent home."

The President said that such a program should include financial aids "to yield more housing at lower prices" and should provide public housing for low-income families.

In gaining the third goal of conservation of the nation's natural resources, the President said "we must vigorously defend our natural wealth against those who would misuse it for selfish gain."

HE PROPOSED:

A. "To develop new supplies (of minerals) and to acquire stockpiles of scarce materials."

B. "Protect and restore our land—public and private—through combating erosion and rebuilding the fertility of our soil."

C. "Expand our reclamation program to bring millions of acres of arid land into production, and to improve water supplies for additional millions of acres."

D. "Protect and restore our forests by sustained-yield forestry and by planting new trees in areas now slashed and barren."

E. "We must continue to erect multiple-purpose dams on our great rivers—not only to reclaim land, but also to prevent floods, to extend our inland waterways and to provide hydroelectric power. This public power must not be monopolized for private gain."

Dealing with his fourth goal of a higher standard of living for all, the President said that "we can go far toward stamping out poverty in our generation" if agriculture, business and labor will "move forward together."

He said 14 million more persons have jobs today than in 1938, the yearly output of goods and services has increased by two-thirds, and that the average income has increased, after taxes, "by more than 50 per cent."

As aids toward reaching that goal, the President outlined:

A. Elimination of inequalities in the standard of living between the farmer and city dweller by enabling the "farmer to market his varied crops at fair price levels and to improve his standard of living."

B. CONTINUATION but modernization of the farm price support program "for major farm commodities on a basis which will afford reasonable protection against fluctuations in the levels of production and demand."

C. "Group insurance should be strengthened and its benefits extended in order to protect the farmer against the special hazards to which he is subject."

D. "We also need to improve the means of getting farm products into the markets and into the hands of consumers. Co-operatives which directly or indirectly serve this purpose must be encouraged—not discouraged."

E. "We need to go forward with the rural electrification program to bring the benefits of electricity to all our farm population."

F. "At least $50 billion should be invested by industry to improve and expand our productive facilities over the next few years. The industrial application of atomic energy and other scientific advances will constantly open up further opportunities for expansion."

G. "The appropriation of sufficient funds to permit proper enforcement of the present anti-trust laws is essential. Competition is seriously limited today in many industries by the concentration of economic power and other elements of monopoly."

H. "I recommend lifting the minimum wage to 75 cents an hour. Our 40 cent minimum wage is inadequate and obsolete."

I. Continuation of collective bargaining methods in adjusting wage scales between labor and industry."

IN DISCUSSING his foreign policy, he cited these major points in its implementation:

A. "We are giving, and will continue to give, our full support to the United Nations. While that organization has encountered unforeseen and unwelcome difficulties, I am confident of its ultimate success."

B. Continuation of substantial aid to Greece and Turkey—"had it not been for our aid, their situation today might well be radically different."

C. Special responsibilities toward occupied Germany, Austria, Japan and Korea—"our efforts to reach agreements on peace settlements for these countries have so far been blocked."

D. Announced that a "special program" for assistance to China will be submitted to congress.

E. Urged prompt enactment of the European Recovery Program as a decisive "contribution to world peace."—"I consider it of the highest importance that the congress should authorize support for the European Recovery Program for the period from April 1, 1948, to June 30,

Last Victims Of Sleigh Crash Being Buried

ARCHBOLD, Jan. 7.—The last of 10 young victims whose lives were snuffed out Sunday when a fast passenger train smashed their joy-riding sleigh to bits were buried today.

Archbold, Northwestern Ohio community of 1,300, mourned openly as the funeral services for the children of three families were conducted.

The bodies of Donald Grieser, 13; his brother, Marlin, 11, and their sisters, Arlene, 10, and Janice, 4, were buried this morning after services in the Central Mennonite church.

This afternoon, in the same tiny chapel, services were to be conducted for their four distant cousins, Gayle Grieser, 13, her twin, Charlene, and their sisters, Patricia, 8, and Sharon, 6.

The other two victims, Jean Osborne, 12, and her sister, Marjorie, 16, were buried yesterday.

THE WALLACE PARTY

THE WALLACE presidential campaign resembles somewhat the last important third party movement, that for the late Robert M. La Follette in 1924. That appealed to the liberals who saw little difference between President Calvin Coolidge and the Democratic candidate, the conservative John W. Davis. It had also the support of the leftwingers of that time; the Socialists failed to nominate their own ticket and supported La Follette. Labor, too, was found in his ranks. The American Federation of Labor gave him its blessing, though the New York branch eventually turned to Davis. All this brought La Follette 4,600,000 votes to 8,300,000 for Davis and 15,700,000 for Coolidge. La Follette carried, however, only one state, his own Wisconsin, with 13 electoral votes. Chairman William M. Butler of the Republican national committee told reporters at the time that in another month he could have swung Wisconsin to Coolidge.

Wallace will not have the strong labor support of La Follette. Reuther and other influential labor leaders do not favor a third party. Nor does he possess the strong party organization that gained Wisconsin for La Follette. On the other hand, these are not the placid days of 1924, when people asked only not to be disturbed and voted for the most conservative candidate.

OVERLOOKED TRICK

POLITICIANS are usually up to all the tricks of the trade. It is astonishing therefore that neither party has repeated the act by which the Michigan Democrats picked up a few easy electoral votes in the 1892 presidential election.

Carrying the state in 1890 in a surprise election whose result did not seem likely to be soon repeated, they passed a law providing that electoral votes should be chosen by congressional districts instead of by the state as a whole. In the presidential election the Democrats carried five districts out of 14, and got five electoral votes. The vote by the usual method would have given all 14 to the Republicans.

As the legislature of each state has the power to choose how its presidential electors shall be chosen, Michigan's action was entirely legal. Yet it has never been repeated nor copied. Perhaps politicians fear that there remains a feeling among voters that honesty is the best policy.

President Truman is willing to confer with Stalin on the disputes that now divide them. If Stalin does not accept, perhaps his name should be changed to Stalin'. In fact, Stalin' is what the whole Politburo is doing now—just waiting around for the Great American Capitalist Financial Collapse. We could win that round by having sense enough not to let ourselves have a depression.

Warren Seen a Real Threat | Realtors Gird for Battle Against Control Extension

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—The "draft Eisenhower" drive being readied for 1948 by powerful eastern Republicans has all but obscured the fact that California's Gov. Earl Warren is a threat to all other potential GOP presidential candidates.

Warren's announcement some weeks ago that he would be a candidate was interpreted at first as a direct slap at New York's Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, who has been indicating that Warren might be induced to run as his vice presidential candidate. Political observers reported at the time that Warren was irked with Dewey, hence the announcement from Sacramento.

However, it now is known that Warren actually wants the presidential nomination, and will go after it hard. He figures to profit by a stalemate between Dewey and Ohio's Senator Robert A. Taft, early leaders in the nomination sweepstakes, every bit as much as Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. Warren's advantage would be particularly good if Eisenhower becomes lukewarm toward his backers when he takes over as head of Columbia university. Such an attitude on Eisenhower's part is a possibility, though not a probability.

Warren can command the big California delegation at Philadelphia when the Republicans nominate. He also will bring with him Washington, Oregon and Colorado, and may have several other Rocky mountain states as well.

Warren's backers claim that the friendly Californian has the greatest popular appeal of any Republican presidential aspirant—with the possible exception of General Eisenhower.

These Days

The Washington Post says: "... Actually Marshal Feng is in the doghouse so far as Chiang Kai-shek is concerned, but Chiang was so constrained by Feng's prestige with the people and the armies of China—all of them, Communist as well—that he gave him a mission abroad and a high-sounding title as the mark of his displeasure. Feng's 'crime' is that he refused to participate in the Chinese killing of Chinese. In other words, he was opposed to the civil war, and, in protest, resigned his post as vice generalissimo of the Kuomintang armies under Chiang Kai-shek."

Unfortunately for the record, General Feng Yu-hsiang has been an active participant in China's civil wars since 1920 to my personal knowledge. He did not mind killing Chinese as long as his armies did the killing. Some of his private wars, particularly those in which he turned on his old colleague, Wu Pei-fu, were senseless and were more responsible than any other cause for the rise of the Tachuns and the disorganization of North China and the ultimate success of the Kuomintang-Communist revolution of 1925-7.

To say that Feng is opposed to killing Chinese is to imply that there is no one in this country who knows his tricky record, his deals with Karakhan, Borodin, Galens-Blucher and other agents of Soviet Russia in China. It is not at all surprising that Feng should have left China as an agent for Chiang Kai-shek and should, while in this country, attend a pro-Russian, pro-Communist convention in Kansas City where the principal enemy of China and the United States, Soviet Russia, was lauded to the skies.

What will Feng do if the course of events and American negligence force the Chinese government to turn a favorable ear to Russia blandishments? That may come to pass, for, unaided, the Nanking government is helpless. Will he then praise Chiang as a wise statesman because he joined forces, by the coercive power of circumstance, with America's enemy?

The Washington Post further comments: "It is wrong to think that the present war is a war between Chiang Kai-shek and the Communists. It is a gigantic melee in which many factions and dissidents, as well as the Communists, are engaged against Chiang Kai-shek. A bare chance remains of mediating this fratricidal strife, but if this is impossible, and furthermore, if Chiang is defeated, any new regime in Nanking would certainly not be Communist. Feng, whose view this is, merely confirms what most sober observers of the confusion in China report."

Whoever wrote that editorial should have known better than to prophesy what is going to happen in China. Foreigners have been doing that since the late 1830's when they first began solving China's problems with such few results as are now apparent. It is almost axiomatic that just the opposite of what they say usually happens. When Chiang Kai-shek first began to move out of Canton, all the foreigners at the long bars in Peking and Shanghai, to say nothing of Hankow and Hongkong, were sure that he would fizzle out. And their argument was Northerners!

Speaking of the Marshall Plan, why not take the advice of Omar: "Oh, make the most of what we yet may spend, before we, too, into the earth descend".

It is reassuring at this time of year to observe that apparently there'll always be an almanac.

"I told you everybody would admire that new tie I gave you!"

DIET AND HEALTH

When a Spinal Disk Moves

By HERMAN N. RUNDESEN, M.D.

THE bones of the spine are separated and cushioned by little disks of cartilage which sort of act as shock absorbers. Now and then one of these pads, known to doctors as intervertebral disks, ruptures or slips out of place. As a result, pressure is put on all the nerves coming from the spinal cord at that point. The first and chief symptom of nerve pressure is pain. Where it occurs will depend, of course, on the location of the ruptured disk. If this—as is frequently the case—is in the lower part of the spine, pressure is likely to be exerted on one of the nerves which go to make the great sciatic nerve, which runs down the back of the leg, and pain may be felt anywhere along its length.

Shows in X-ray As a rule, the ruptured disk will show up in an X-ray plate. If a diagnosis of a ruptured disk is made, many physicians think that a period of conservative treatment should be tried before resorting to operation. During the early period, the patient should be kept at complete rest in bed, and the spine immobilized, that is, kept from moving by the use of a cast or brace if necessary. The patient should also be given pain-relieving drugs if they are required.

Acute Symptoms When the acute symptoms disappear, the patient should be allowed to move about. However, the back should be protected with a brace or cast, and attempts made to correct the patient's posture. If, with this treatment, the pain continues or there is evidence of a great deal of pressure on the nerves, or if the pain is so severe as to interfere with normal activity, operation is necessary. In this operation, the ruptured disk is removed, and it is recommended that what is known as a spinal fusion be carried out. This consists in fusing a number of the bones of the spine together. If this fusion is not carried out, there may be disabling symptoms following the operation. It would appear that the results obtained when a fusion is done are far superior to those operations without fusion. Good results are obtained from the operation in more than three-fifths of the cases. Complete relief from all symptoms, however, may not always be secured.

General Rule Just why rupture of a disk occurs cannot always be determined. As a general rule some injury or accident is responsible. Persons who have pain in the lower part of the back, or sciatica, of course require a thorough study by an orthopedic specialist to determine the cause. There are many conditions other than a ruptured disk, responsible for sciatica and low back pain. QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS H. T.: Is there anything that will keep head lice and get rid of the eggs? Answer: To get rid of lice, you might try the following: Thoroughly soak the scalp with petroleum, then apply a loose head bandage and leave this in place for from 12 to 24 hours, during which time the hair must be covered to guard against exposure to an open flame. Remove the dressing, thoroughly scrub the head with soapy water; apply a lotion of acetic acid, such as vinegar, and comb out the hair thoroughly with a fine-tooth comb. The next night, apply some more vinegar, and comb the hair again.

SYNOPSIS Catherine Lisle is engaged to Nicky Gray, former aviator recently discharged from an army hospital, but only to herself would she admit her feeling for him was one of compassion more than love. Following a visit to the doctor for a final check-up, he apologized for not taking her to dinner saying he had promised to meet Dick Blanchard, a friend from the Air Force.

While passing her Aunt Angela Wardwell's town house, which had been closed since the sudden death of her husband, John, a few years before, Catherine was surprised to see it ablaze with lights. She would have stopped in had she not spied her cousin Hat La Motte's car at the curb. Catherine's dislike of Hat had reached a new high shortly before her uncle's death when she had deliberately appropriated Stephen Darrell with whom Catherine was then in love. As she turned away she collided with a strange man who had been staring intently at the Wardwell house. Later, at her apartment, Catherine recalled that day long ago when she had surprised Hat and Stephen together at the latter's small cottage near Angela's country place. Stephen was then in the Navy, had tried repeatedly to explain but Catherine refused to see him, and shortly after he had gone to the Pacific. Bounced by the doorbell, she is amazed to find him on her threshold. He had come hoping to see Nicky and registered surprise when Catherine told him Nicky was dining with Dick Blanchard. He remarked about Catherine's possession of the silver leopard, a desk ornament which had belonged to John Wardwell, and she explained that her uncle had sent it to her for Christmas the year he died. At the Wardwell house the following day Angela insists that Catherine let her help financially when she and Nicky marry. The maid announced the arrival of Hat's brother Tom and his wife, Francine, and Catherine went down to visit with them while Angela finished dressing. But outside the living room she heard them heatedly discussing her late uncle and was mystified when Francine said, "He might have given them to Stephen to keep."

CHAPTER SIX THERE were no outward shadows, nothing ostensible to strike chill. Nevertheless, Catherine was aware of undercurrents. For one thing, Angela herself wasn't at ease. Instead of sitting down tranquilly, she moved about touching various objects, straightening a bronze, shifting the fold of a curtain. For another, Tom and Francine had somewhat the air of bright-eyed children asked there for a birthday treat and wondering, and firmly concealing their wonder, as to what it was.

Angela must have prepared them for something in a letter. She finally told them, but not before Hat appeared. She had evidently been waiting for the girl who, next to Tom, was the apple of her eye. Hat paused in the doorway and Catherine looked at her curiously. Slight, fair, with small chiseled features, a rose-leaf skin and large childlike brown eyes, she was nothing like the girl who had been the full sinuous red mouth, or the way she carried herself.

"Narcissus complex," Tom said of her, with one of his rare flashes of penetration. "Loves to look at herself in the mirror. Always did. Never sees anything half as good out of it. Oh, well, she'll grow up some day."

Hat came in negligently, hands thrust into the pockets of her black-velvet lounging suit, the pale flame of her hair bright. "Hello, everybody. How are you, Francine?" She drifted, with an effect of being on rollers, to a green-satin chair beside a coffee table, curled herself up in the chair, feet tucked under her.

Her "Hello, everybody" included Catherine. She gave her a special greeting. She gave her a special look. It was a scrutiny almost. Among other things, there was surprise in it.

It's my suit, Catherine thought. She doesn't know what I'm doing in a Carnegie model. "Well, darling," Hat said to Angela, "now that we're all gathered here together in the sight of . . . Tom, which I consider cruel and inhuman treatment, as I didn't get in until four. . . ." Her glance wandered over Catherine again. "What momentous news have you got for us? I hope it's nice."

"I hope you'll think so," Angela was standing in the curve of the grand piano, tall and impressive in gray wool, an elbow propped on the shining wood. Pearls glimmered at her throat. She said quietly, "I'm going to be married again."

Silence. It reverberated. Shock, Francine and Tom and Hat looked as stunned as though the ceiling had come down and showered them abruptly with bricks and mortar. It wasn't Catherine's show, but she couldn't help observing and recording. Why should they be so taken aback by the thought of Angela's remarriage? She was a comparatively young woman and John had been dead almost two years. If she wanted to marry again, surely it was her own affair. Tom was married himself. Hat was almost never at home, and she must often be lonely.

The other three sat completely still. They didn't move or speak. The silence went on and on. It came to an end. It was Francine who broke in, in rather an ugly way. She laughed. Her laugh was a small brittle splinter striking against sheet metal. "But—how amazing!" she exclaimed in too high a voice. "Who is the fortunate man, darling, may we know?"

Angela had evidently been prepared for the reception her announcement had received. There was a traced air to her. She gave Francine a level glance. "Of course, it's Mike."

Another pause. More stares, at nothing, Catherine said, and meant it. "Oh, Angela, I'm so glad."

But she was surprised. Somehow or other she had never thought of Mike Nye as marrying. The cat who walked alone—he was sufficient unto himself. Work was his ruling passion. He was a painter first, last and all the time. Moreover, he was an inveterate wanderer over the face of his own and every other country in the world, while Angela was essentially domestic and liked roots. Perhaps Mike was tired of roaming and Angela wanted a little adventure. They would probably be very happy together.

Shame enveloped her at Tom and Hat's complete lack of response. It was horrid. They made children, they were her sisters, and she had been a mother to them without a mother's obligation, had given them a second father, because that was what John had been to them both. Was it because of John that they were showing this motionless and implacable opposition? For it was there—and then all at once it was gone.

Angela said, "Thank you, Catherine, I knew you'd be glad," and Tom sprang up, crossed the floor, went to Angela, took her by the shoulders and kissed her cheek. "Good luck, old girl, and all the best," Francine followed suit. She was her crisp, assured self again, had regained her aplomb. "It—it takes my breath away, but I think it's wonderful. I know you're going to be happy. . . . Mike's a swell guy."

Hat didn't rise, but she added her tribute. "I'm glad it's Mike," she said. "I'm slightly hoarse voice, the result of an injury to her vocal chords when she was a child. . . . You're much too attractive to be wandering around the world alone. . . . Where is Mike? When are we going to see him?"

The tension had gone out of Angela. She was quietly happy. "He left Santa Fe for Washington the day before yesterday. He ought to be through there by the end of next week. We'll be married as soon as he gets back. Mike has to go to South America to paint someone and he wants me to go with him. . . ."

"South America? What's going to happen to poor little me?" Hat was doleful.

"We thought, dear, that you might join us, in a month or two." Hat gave a small scream. "All that distance, and the water, and earthquakes, and insects that breed under your skin. . . ."

"Good-neighbor policy," Tom said with a grin.

The amend honorable. All's well that ends well. But had it? Catherine wondered. Talk, questions and answers, plans, Angela was as pleased as a large grave child at their interest, response. Underneath, in all three of them, there were distinct signs of excitement and worry. Her lip curled. Were they worrying about money? John had left everything to Angela and until now what had been hers had been theirs automatically, without question. Perhaps she was misjudging them, she thought, and knew at the end of another twenty minutes that she wasn't.

The front door bell rang and someone came in. It was Mike Nye. Angela was wrong. He wasn't in Washington. He was here in New York. They heard his voice first, shouting at Mrs. Bettinger in the lower hall. She was as deaf as a post. His arrival was as complete a surprise to Angela as to everyone else. She said, startled, "Why, it's Mike," and went quickly to the door. Behind her, for an instant, the masks dropped.

The interchange was swift, wordless. Francine and Tom looked at each other and Hat looked at Tom, gave a small shrug and looked away. Her faint smile wasn't pleasant. It said, as clearly as though she had shouted aloud, "So here we are, in the soup."

Then Mike was in the room, an arm through Angela's and they were all crowding around him and wishing him well. Very tall and wide-shouldered and spare, his rugged guizual face highlighted by thick-lined black brows above small twinkling gray-green eyes he received their congratulations smilingly. In the background, Catherine gave an involuntary exclamation. She couldn't help it. She hadn't seen Mike in more than a year. During that time, his black hair, a heavy cap of it touched lightly with gray at the temples, had turned completely white.

He was coming toward her. She said, "Mike, your hair," and he said, "Getting old, getting old, Kate," and took her two hands in his. "What's this I hear about you and Nick Gray? Well, well, if Angela hadn't taken me, I was going to marry you myself."

Mike at least wasn't disapproving. He seemed pleased.

THE WALLACE PARTY

THE WALLACE presidential campaign resembles somewhat the last important third party movement, that for the late Robert M. La Follette in 1924. That appealed to the liberals who saw little difference between President Calvin Coolidge and the Democratic candidate, the conservative John W. Davis. It had also the support of the leftwingers of that time; the Socialists failed to nominate their own ticket and supported La Follette. Labor, too, was found in his ranks. The American Federation of Labor gave him its blessing, though the New York branch eventually turned to Davis. All this brought La Follette 4,800,000 votes to 8,800,000 for Davis and 15,700,000 for Coolidge. La Follette carried, however, only one state, his own Wisconsin, with 13 electoral votes. Chairman William M. Butler of the Republican national committee told reporters at the time that in another month he could have swung Wisconsin to Coolidge.

Wallace will not have the strong labor support of La Follette. Reuther and other influential labor leaders do not favor a third party. Nor does he possess the strong party organization that gained Wisconsin for La Follette. On the other hand, these are not the placid days of 1924, when people asked only not to be disturbed and voted for the most conservative candidate.

OVERLOOKED TRICK

POLITICIANS are usually up to all the tricks of the trade. It is astonishing therefore that neither party has repeated the act by which the Michigan Democrats picked up a few easy electoral votes in the 1892 presidential election.

Carrying the state in 1890 in a surprise election whose result did not seem likely to be soon repeated, they passed a law providing that electoral votes should be chosen by congressional districts instead of by the state as a whole. In the presidential election the Democrats carried five districts out of 14, and got five electoral votes. The vote by the usual method would have given all 14 to the Republicans.

As the legislature of each state has the power to choose how its presidential electors shall be chosen, Michigan's action was entirely legal. Yet it has never been repeated nor copied. Perhaps politicians fear that there remains a feeling among voters that honesty is the best policy.

President Truman is willing to confer with Stalin on the disputes that now divide them. If Stalin does not accept, perhaps his name should be changed to Stalin'. In fact, Stalin' is what the whole Politburo is doing now—just waiting around for the Great American Capitalist Financial Collapse. We could win that round by having sense enough not to let ourselves have a depression.

Warren Seen a Real Threat
To Other GOP Candidates

Realists Gird for Battle
Against Control Extension

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—The "draft Eisenhower" drive being readied for 1948 by powerful eastern Republicans has all but obscured the fact that California's Gov. Earl Warren is a threat to all other potential GOP presidential candidates.

Warren's announcement some weeks ago that he would be a candidate was interpreted at first as a direct slap at New York's Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, who has been indicating that Warren might be induced to run as his vice presidential candidate. Political observers reported at the time that Warren was irked with Dewey, hence the announcement from Sacramento.

However, it now is known that Warren actually wants the presidential nomination, and will go after it hard. He figures to profit by a stalemate between Dewey and Ohio's Senator Robert A. Taft, early leaders in the nomination sweepstakes, every bit as much as Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. Warren's advantage would be particularly good if Eisenhower becomes lukewarm toward his backers when he takes over as head of Columbia university. Such an attitude on Eisenhower's part is a possibility, though not a probability.

Warren can command the big California delegation at Philadelphia when the Republicans nominate. He also will bring with him Washington, Oregon and Colorado, and may have several other Rocky mountain states as well.

Warren's backers claim that the friendly Californian has the greatest popular appeal of any Republican presidential aspirant—with the possible exception of General Eisenhower.

These Days

The Washington Post says:

... Actually Marshal Feng is in the doghouse so far as Chiang Kai-shek is concerned, but Chiang was so constrained by Feng's prestige with the people and the armies of China—all of them, Communist as well—that he gave him a mission abroad and a high-sounding title as the mark of his displeasure. Feng's 'crime' is that he refused to participate in Chinese killing of Chinese. In other words, he was opposed to the civil war, and, in protest, resigned his post as vice generalissimo of the Kuomintang armies under Chiang Kai-shek.

Unfortunately for the record, General Feng Yu-shiang has been an active participant in China's civil wars since 1920 to his personal knowledge. He did not mind killing Chinese as long as his armies did the killing. Some of his private wars, particularly those in which he turned on his old colleague, Wu Pei-fu, were senseless and were more responsible than any other cause for the rise of the Tuchuns and the disorganization of North China and the ultimate success of the Kuomintang-Communist revolution of 1925-7.

To say that Feng is opposed to killing Chinese is to imply that there is no one in this country who knows his tricky record, his deals with Karakhan, Borodin, Galens-Bluecher and other agents of Soviet Russia in China. It is not at all surprising that Feng should have left China as an agent for Chiang Kai-shek and should, while in this country, attend a pro-Russian, pro-Communist convention in Kansas City where the principal enemy of China and the United States, Soviet Russia, was lauded to the skies.

What will Feng do if the course of events and American negligence force the Chinese government to turn a favorable ear to Russia blandishments? That may come to pass, for, unaided, the Nanking government is helpless. Will he then praise Chiang as a wise statesman because he joined forces, by the coercive power of circumstance, with America's enemy?

The Washington Post further comments: "It is wrong to think that the present war is a war between Chiang Kai-shek and the Communists. It is a gigantic melee in which many factions and dissidents, as well as the Communists, are engaged against Chiang Kai-shek. A bare chance remains of mediating this fratricidal strife, but if this is impossible, and furthermore, if Chiang is defeated, any new regime in Nanking would certainly not be Communist. Feng, whose view this is, merely confirms what most sober observers of the confusion in China report."

Whoever wrote that editorial should have known better than to prophesy what is going to happen in China. Foreigners have been doing that since the late 1830's when they first began solving China's problems with such few results as are now apparent. It is almost axiomatic that just the opposite of what they say usually happens. When Chiang Kai-shek first began to move out of Canton, all the foreigners at the long bars in Peking and Shanghai, to say nothing of Hankow and Hongkong, were sure that he would fizzle out. And their argument was Northerners!

Speaking of the Marshall Plan, why not take the advice of Omar: "Oh, make the most of what we yet may spend, before we, too, into the earth descend."

It is reassuring at this time of year to observe that apparently there'll always be an almanac.

When a Spinal Disk Moves

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE bones of the spine are separated and cushioned by little disks of cartilage which sort of act as shock absorbers. Now and then one of these pads, known to doctors as intervertebral disks, ruptures or slips out of place. As a result, pressure is put on all the nerves coming from the spinal cord at that point.

The first and chief symptom of nerve pressure is pain. Where it occurs will depend, of course, on the location of the ruptured disk. If this—as is frequently the case—is in the lower part of the spine, pressure is likely to be exerted on some of the nerves which go to make the great sciatic nerve, which runs down the back of the leg, and pain may be felt anywhere along its length.

As a rule, the ruptured disk will show up in an X-ray plate. If a diagnosis of a ruptured disk is made, many physicians think that a period of conservative treatment should be tried before resorting to operation. During the early period, the patient should be kept at complete rest in bed, and the spine immobilized, that is, kept from moving by the use of a cast or brace if necessary. The patient should also be given pain-relieving drugs if they are required.

Acute Symptoms
When the acute symptoms disappear, the patient should be allowed to move about. However, the back should be protected with a brace or cast, and attempts made to correct the patient's posture.

If, with this treatment, the pain continues or there is evidence of a great deal of pressure on the nerves, or if the pain is so severe as to interfere with normal activity, operation is necessary.

In this operation, the ruptured disk is removed, and it is recommended that what is known as a spinal fusion be carried out. This consists in fusing a number of the bones of the spine together. If this fusion is not carried out, there may be disabling symptoms following the operation. It would appear that the results obtained when a fusion is done are far superior to those operations without fusion. Good results are obtained from the operation in more than three-fifths of the cases. Complete relief from all symptoms, however, may not always be secured.

General Rule
Just why rupture of a disk occurs cannot always be determined. As a general rule some injury or accident is responsible.

There are many conditions other than a ruptured disk, responsible for sciatica and low back pain. "Good-neighbor policy," Tom said with a grin.

The amend honorable. All's well that ends well. But had it? Catherine wondered. Talk, questions and answers, plans, Angela was as pleased as a large grave child at their interest, response. Underneath, in all three of them, there were distinct signs of excitement and strain. Her lip curled. Were they worrying about money? John had left everything to Angela and until now what had been hers had been theirs automatically, without question. Perhaps she was misjudging them, she thought, and knew at the end of another twenty minutes that she wasn't.

The front door bell rang and someone came in. It was Mike Nye. Angela was wrong. He wasn't in Washington. He was here in New York. They heard his voice first, shouting at Mrs. Bettenger in the lower hall. She was as deaf as a post. His arrival was as complete a surprise to Angela as to everyone else. She said, startled, "Why, it's Mike," and went quickly to the door. Behind her back, for an instant, the masks dropped.

The interchange was swift, wordless. Francine and Tom looked at each other and Hank looked at Tom, gave a small shrug and looked away. Her faint smile wasn't pleasant. It said, as clearly as though she had shouted aloud, "So here we are, in the soup." Then Mike was in the room, an arm through Angela's and they were all crowding around him and wishing him well. Very tall and wide-shouldered and spare, his rugged quizzical face highlighted by thick-lashed black brows above small twinkling gray-green eyes; he received their congratulations smilingly. In the background, Catherine gave an involuntary exclamation. She couldn't help it. She hadn't seen Mike in more than a year. During that time, his black hair, a heavy cap of it touched lightly with gray at the temples, had turned completely white.

He was coming toward her. He said, "Mike, your hair," and he said, "Getting old, getting old, Kate," and took her two hands in his. "What's this I hear about you and Nick Gray? Well, well, if Angela hadn't taken me, I was going to marry you myself."

Mike at least wasn't disapproving. He seemed pleased.

Those whose birthday it is may count upon a year of unusual liveliness and activity, with new and important projects claiming the attention. It is a period for organizing, for salesmanship, for dealings with high-circles, with sound prospect of attaining generous support, if not high honors.

A child born on this day, is well equipped for a successful and prosperous life, being versatile, alert, and quick to grasp opportunities.

The Rev. L. C. Sherburne, rector of St. Philip's Episcopal church, spoke before the Child Conservation League Monday afternoon when Mrs. John W. Eshelman opened her home, North Pickaway street, to its members for their January meeting.

Mrs. Frank Susa, program chairman, introduced Rev. Mr. Sherburne, who spoke on "Character Development of the Child." He stated that child conservation is the preservation of moral values. He mentioned both hindrances and aids in the character development of the child. # Solons Say Aid Plan To Harm Steel

Small Businessmen
To Be Ruined

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 — Senate steel investigators warned in a tentative report today that the prospect of continued heavy exports under the Marshall Plan will force small steel businessmen "completely to the wall."

The senate small business subcommittee report, awaiting final approval by members, criticized findings of the administration's foreign aid experts and recommended:

1. A federal trade commission investigation of such steel industry practices as purchase of plants by steel consumers and other producers, sales to subsidiaries and shifts in distribution.

2. Self-policing by the industry to break the "gray market" in steel by assuring all users a fair share at "reasonable prices."

3. Immediate action to develop sources of ferrous scrap. The group declared itself "absolutely opposed to the export of scrap to foreign nations."

THE SUBCOMMITTEE headed by Sen. Martin (R) Pa. submitted the draft report to senators on the eve of the first Marshall Plan hearings.

In it the senate investigators charged that none of the voluminous administration ERP reports had offered suggestions on (1) how available steel is to be divided, or (2) "where the steel will come from" to increase exports to Western Europe.

The report stated flatly that all steel production now available is needed in the United States.

It recognized that continuance of "normal exports" is necessary for "the welfare of the world" but pointed out that maintenance of steel exports at the present level of seven million tons a year would mean a domestic deficit of at least 3,600,000 tons.

In other tentative findings the subcommittee concluded that:

1. A recommendation be made for extension of export controls over steel for "as long as the necessity exists and as long as efforts to secure greater exports of critical steel products are being made."

2. Commerce department export quotas now are "based upon guesswork rather than upon reality." No survey of domestic requirements has been made since prewar days, the report said.

3. Both the Commerce and State departments show a tendency to "consider foreign needs to the detriment of our own people at home."

Road Closed

A section of old U. S. Route 22 west of Circleville has been closed until damage is repaired on a stone culvert, County Engineer Henry T. McCrady said.

High water caused stone and masonry to become loosened and endangered traffic. McCrady said the road would be opened as soon as the high water recedes and repairs can be made.

Vandals Shoot At Insulators

The Ohio Midland Light and Power Co., Monday reported to Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff that someone is shooting insulators from its power lines along State Route 316, south of South Bloomfield.

First report of the damage was noted early New Year's day morning. Damage was reported a second time this week.

Company officials said the damaged insulators were causing a power shut-off as far south as Frankfort.

Sheriff Radcliff warned the vandals that such acts warrant jail terms.

VOICE-CONSCIOUS SOLONS

Congressmen Practicing On Speech Techniques

By KENNETH L. DIXON
WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The senator was talking over the telephone. That was quite clear. Yet the individual at the other end of the line was puzzled. Someone seemed to be talking in the room behind the senator—and the strange thing was that the voice in the background also sounded like the senator's!

"Say, senator, he said finally, 'that office of yours must have some screwy acoustics. I seem to be getting echoes of your own voice.'"

"Oh—uh—excuse me a moment," said the senator. Then to someone in his office: "Turn that thing off: I'm on the phone."

Turning back to the phone, he laughed a little embarrassedly. "Just playing back a practice recording of a speech," he said. "Sort of helps you in delivery, but—uh, I'd rather you wouldn't mention that I was doing it, if you don't mind."

So we won't mention the senator's name—but that is a good method as any of pointing out that this second session of the eightieth congress is by far the most voice-conscious legislature ever assembled in this capital city.

AND FOR the most part, you can either praise or blame radio for the condition.

It is difficult to get definite estimates, since most congressmen are as sensitive on the subject as was the senator, but certainly scores of lawmakers are now seeking to improve their voices and delivery styles—both on and off the air.

It's a terrific boom to Washington's several hundred foreign instructors, voice teachers and diction and speech delivery specialists—not to mention the salesmen of various types of home and office recording machines.

Due to congressional shyness on the subject, most of the teachers will not admit they are instructing the solons, and even those who concede they have a few on their list do not mention names.

Even a few local radio announcers who have been called in as "voice consultants" hesitate to betray the names of their students.

Why all this sudden preoccupation with the sound of their own voices—particularly among politicians generally famed for their fondness of that same sound?

The answer, according to one veteran voice teacher: "Until recently, many of them never actually had heard their own voices—that is, as others hear them. Few people know how their own voices sound, until they've heard their own recordings."

THAT'S WHAT happened to almost all congressmen at one time or another during the first session and the special session. Addresses on the floor and countless committee meetings were broadcast, either directly or by recording.

As a result, many a solon who has thundered happily through many a campaign speech suddenly discovered—sitting at home that night, listening to the recordings—that he had a squeaky, ridiculous-sounding voice. The shock was so great some of the boys stayed silent for days.

Suddenly they began to realize that his was only the beginning. The radio coverage of last session was nothing to what it will be this time.

So now they're busy with instructors and voice experts and tone exercises and recording machines. And, as I say, you can either praise or blame the radio people for the "new sound" on Capitol Hill.

It's true that they kept some of the louder solons silent for a time, in sheer shock at the real sound of their own voices.

But such heels sound easy—oops, I mean such wounds heal easily among egotists, and most of them already are falling in love with the new sound.

City Firemen Made More Calls, Had Less Loss In '47 Than In '46

Circleville's fire department did more business in 1947 than in the previous year, but the total loss last year was almost a fifth of the estimated loss for 1946.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise told city council in his annual report Tuesday night that the department made 166 runs in 1947 compared to 151 in 1946.

Of the 1947 total, 139 were city calls and 27 were rural. In 1946, a total of 110 city runs were made while 41 others went into the country.

The 1947 estimated total loss was $7,335 compared to an estimated total loss of $34,840 in 1946.

VOICE-CONSCIOUS SOLONS

Congressmen Practicing On Speech Techniques

By KENNETH L. DIXON
WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The senator was talking over the telephone. That was quite clear. Yet the individual at the other end of the line was puzzled. Someone seemed to be talking in the room behind the senator—and the strange thing was that the voice in the background also sounded like the senator's!

"Say, senator, he said finally, 'that office of yours must have some screwy acoustics. I seem to be getting echoes of your own voice.'"

"Oh—uh—excuse me a moment," said the senator. Then to someone in his office: "Turn that thing off: I'm on the phone."

Turning back to the phone, he laughed a little embarrassedly. "Just playing back a practice recording of a speech," he said. "Sort of helps you in delivery, but—uh, I'd rather you wouldn't mention that I was doing it, if you don't mind."

So we won't mention the senator's name—but that is as good a method as any of pointing out that this second session of the eightieth congress is by far the most voice-conscious legislature ever assembled in this capital city.

through many a campaign speech suddenly discovered—sitting at home that night, listening to the recordings—that he had a squeaky, ridiculous-sounding voice. The shock was so great some of the boys stayed silent for days.

Suddenly they began to realize that his was only the beginning. The radio coverage of last session was nothing to what it will be this time.

So now they're busy with instructors and voice experts and tone exercises and recording machines. And, as I say, you can either praise or blame the radio people for the "new sound" on Capitol Hill.

It's true that they kept some of the louder solons silent for a time, in sheer shock at the real sound of their own voices.

But such heels sound easy—oops, I mean such wounds heal easily among egoists, and most of them already are falling in love with the new sound.

City Firemen Made More Calls, Had Less Loss In '47 Than In '46

Circleville's fire department did more business in 1947 than in the previous year, but the total loss last year was almost a fifth of the estimated loss for 1946.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise told city council in his annual report Tuesday night that the department made 166 runs in 1947 compared to 151 in 1946.

Of the 1947 total, 139 were city calls and 27 were rural. In 1946, a total of 110 city runs were made while 41 others went into the country.

The 1947 estimated total loss was $7,355 compared to an estimated total loss of $34,840 in 1946.

Of the 139 city calls last year, 44 were to burning automobile, two were to motorcycles.

THERE WAS only one false alarm in 1946 and only one request was received to unlock a door.

In 1946, firemen were called to help bring down a boy stuck in a tree. Last year, the boys behaved themselves, but two house cats were stalled atop power poles and the local smoke-eaters were summoned for retriever duty.

Four persons died of burns in 1947 compared to three the year before.

Greenfield Tops Local Cagers With 47-32 Score

The Greenfield McClain whipped the Circleville Tigers Tuesday night on the Greenfield court by a score of 47-32.

The teams had been evenly matched going into the fourth quarter. But the fourth period proved too much for the local squad as Greenfield scored 24 points to Circleville's 14.

The general trend of the games Circleville has played so far this season shows that the local lads cannot go the whole way without buckling.

In the last quarter the youngsters find themselves worn out

DiMaggio's Paycheck: $100,000

Biggest Pay Hike Is Reported

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—A New York Yankee club official said today that Joe DiMaggio's income this year should be about $100,000.

This figure includes a salary believed to be around $70,000, and payoffs from radio appearances, testimonials and other sidelines.

When the big centerfielder signed his contract yesterday he climbed in among the highest paid players of all time, and he received one of the biggest raises between seasons ever given.

His salary officially was $43,750 for 1942, before he went into the Army, and he received that same figure since his return in 1946.

THROUGH this coming season, his 10th with the Yankees—the only major league club he ever played with—DiMaggio will have earned more than $300,000 in salary alone.

He has picked up approximately $35,000 more in seven World Series, and many thousands more from various outside sources.

He has been most valuable player in the American League three times, including last season; he set an all time record for a batting streak by hitting in 56 straight games in 1941 and he has been a tremendous all-around ball player.

He has hit major league pitching for an average as high as .381 and dropped below .300 only once.

Whatever yesterday's contract was for, he seems to have a chance to top the $80,000 paid Baby Ruth for each of two years by that same club.

A great year in 1948 would entitle the San Francisco to a further raise. He can't stay in the big dough much longer, however. He is 34 years old and has suffered much wear and tear.

Tribe Signs Eddie Sundra

CLEVELAND, Jan. 7.—The Cleveland Indians announced today the signing of Eddie Sundra to a pitching contract with the Dayton club of the Central League.

Sundra is a younger brother of Steve Sundra, former Indian and New York Yankee hurler. He is 20 years old and played semipro ball in Cleveland before going to the Terre Haute 3-Eye League last season.

He won 10 and lost eight with an earned-run average of 3.56 in his first year of pro baseball. He recently was given his unconditional release by Terre Haute.

Although the chunky right-hander is 27 years old and past the age at which a prospect is usually signed, the Tribe prexy has asked Jones to "drop in and see me in a few days to talk the thing over."

Jones pitched for a Class A sandlot team in Cleveland in 1947 and hurled for the Rocky River Cleaners in the same league the season before.

Minn. When he signs, Ted is expected to receive $60,000 a $5,000 raise over last year's salary.

Louis Certain To Fight In June, Report

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, despite a recent Philadelphia title-fight shopping tour and some wolf-hearted Louis - Lesnevich publicity, will defend his crown this June against Jersey Joe Walcott in one of the New York ballparks.

Sol Strauss, acting director of the 20th Century Sporting Club (which reportedly has exclusive rights to Louis) announced yesterday he has "practically closed" a deal with the champion for the June bout.

Strauss postscripted a "subject to further discussion of the details" clause to the announcement, but said the "main terms" have been agreed to verbally by Louis.

The only thing certain is that Louis will defend his title in June; that he will fight at the time solely for the 20th Century; and that he will get 40 percent of the gate, plus a share of the television and radio rights.

Strauss said he "took it for granted" that Walcott will be the Louis challenger, and that the Walcott people (Manager Felix Boochicchio and Jersey Joe) probably "will accept my terms because they are very fair."

Sensan Signs Up With Brownies

CLEVELAND, Jan. 7.—The Cleveland Browns announced today the signing of Dean Sensanbaugh, Ohio State halfback, to a contract to play for the champions of the All-America Football Conference.

The former Uhrichsville star, who played at Ohio State in 1943 and 1947, will be used at right halfback, a position where the Browns have been hampered by injuries for two seasons.

Sensanbaugh played in the East-West game at San Francisco in 1944, the same year he was appointed to the U. S. Military Academy where he played with Doc Blanchard and Glenn Davis.

The new Brown is 20 years old, five feet, nine inches tall and weighs 190 pounds. He also has earned letters in track at the Buckeye school. He is married and lives in Columbus.

In other games last night, Akron squeezed by Mt. Union, 56 to 51 and Dayton slaughtered Rio Grande, 77 to 33.

Leo Champs At Lip As Work Nears

Ricky Grabs Grid Franchise

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Leo Durocher, last season's parish of the ball field, was back in harness today and fairly champing at the lip as of yore.

Branch Rickey was fairly chortling over the fact that the Brooklyn franchise in the All America Football Conference had become his, practically by default. Without, indeed, so much as the required hefting of a debenture or tapping of a cash till.

And, take it from the Messrs. Rickey and Durocher, the Baseball Dodgers of 1948 took the part of a better nine than the club which won the National League pennant in late September.

In fact, everything that was released for publication in the last 24 hours looked mildly colorful to the admiring eyes of Durocher's faithful following, except this:

The Bums will be without any semblance of major league competition this Spring until only four days away from opening day.

THEIR HITTERS will see no Grade A pitching until then. Their pitchers will face only the nominal opposition that minor leagues can present at the plate.

As a preparatory course of conditioning for a tough pennant fight, the 1948 training program of the National League champions may turn out to be just what the undertaker ordered.

This possibility became increasingly clear today, following publication of the club's Spring exhibition program. It calls for the Dodgers to play their own Montreal Royals of the International League right on through until April 16 when the Yankees are scheduled at Ebbets Field.

After two more with their late conquerors of the '47 World Series, the Dodgers will be thrown headlong into the eight-club dog fight that usually marks the National League's opening weeks.

Pennants are seldom, if ever, won at that early stage. They can and have been devastatingly lost—and Rickey would be the last to deny that.

It seems he simply has been caught going the wrong way—for once. When everybody else was scrambling back out of the tropics to the American mainland for their Spring antics, Rickey was busily committing the Dodgers to a long siege in the isolation of Santa Domingo.

Grand Jury To Get At Least 15 Cases

10 Persons Indicted To Major Panel

Venire To Appear For Duty Jan. 16

At least 15 charges will be brought against 10 men when the Pickaway County grand jury convenes Jan. 16.

Four Circleville men, ages 19 to 23, will face collective charges which involve thefts amounting to $1,016.

They are Charles Reed, Paul Weaver and Delmer Weaver, Jr., accused of stealing I-beams valued at $400 from John Eshelman on Nov. 18. The three men are under $1,000 bonds each for this offense.

On a second count, the same three men are being held under $1,000 bonds for the theft of $126 worth of corn. The affidavits were filed by Ralph Z. and E. A. McCoy of Ringgold Pike, who state the theft occurred Oct. 30.

REED AND Delmer Weaver, Jr., face a third indictment which implicates George Valentine. They are accused of stealing $490 worth of corn owned by the Pennsylvania railroad. John J. Kane, special railroad agent, claims they took the corn Aug. 21. Bond was set at $1,000 each.

Other cases to come before the January session of grand jury includes that of Earl Garner of New Holland who is under $1,000 bond for grand larceny. He will be charged with the theft of $150 worth of clothing from Carrol Chaffin of New Holland Aug. 6.

Bond of $500 has been posted by Allen Chandler, New Holland, who was cited for taking scrap iron valued at $2.88 from the New Holland Grain Co. Chandler will appear before grand jury on an affidavit filed by John H. Dunlap, Jr., operator of the grain firm.

Three Newport, Ky., men face grand larceny counts during the January session.

James E. Brown, 40, Elmer C. Davis, 26, and Samson Eisner, 24, await grand jury action under $1,000 bonds each.

THE TRIO is accused of stealing goods valued at $47 from the Armstrong electrical appliance store in New Holland Jan. 3.

A forgery count faces Joseph Leach, 25, Circleville. He was arrested for allegedly passing two $35 bad checks in December at a local garage and a filling station on North Court street.

Persons Over 65 Losing Out On Security Pay

Failure to file claims is causing many people 65 and over to lose benefits under social security.

A recent survey in Ohio showed that 21 persons who failed to file claims promptly sustained a total loss in monthly benefits in the amount of $2,443.78.

Interviews with these people indicated a lack of understanding of the old age and survivors insurance program under the Social Security Act.

of illness and did not file because they intended to return to work. They were not aware that they could receive their insurance payments while they were recuperating. It is not necessary to retire permanently in order to qualify for benefits.

SEVERAL were of the opinion that they could not receive unemployment compensation and insurance payments concurrently.

A few retired from their jobs to set themselves up in businesses of their own. This arrangement would not defeat the entitlement of insurance payments. Some erroneously believed they must be in need before they could be entitled.

Many were too ill to come to the local office. Such persons should know that a field representative of the administration will gladly call at the home to help people who are physically unable to come to the office. A representative of the Columbus field office of the Social Security Administration will be in Circleville, January 23, at the postoffice from 12 to 2 p. m.
